Quarterly Activities Report

Highlights

- Phase 1 Soil Sampling has been completed at the North Achilles project with samples to be analysed via Ultrafine™ (UFF) approach
- Soil sampling follows recent execution of land access agreement with landholder and early site reconnaissance
- Program designed to target the convergence of the regional Uabba and Kilparney Faults, interpreted as a shallowly covered extension of the Achilles Shear Zone
- The recent record gold and silver prices along with momentum behind copper and the exploration success of neighbouring explorers provide a compelling setting for potential discovery

Regener8 Resources NL (ASX: R8R) (Regener8 or the Company) is pleased to provide a summary of activities for the quarter ending 30 September 2025.

Exploration update: North Achilles (NSW)

The North Achilles project (southern Cobar Basin, NSW - Figure 1) is located immediately adjacent to tenements held by Australian Gold and Copper Ltd (ASX:AGC) and approximately 2.2km north of the recent Achilles discovery. AGC have achieved outstanding drill results at Achilles including 5 metres @ 16.9g/t Au, 1,667g/t Ag, 0.4% Cu & 15% Pb + Zn (A3RC030 - AGC ASX Ann. 04.06.2024).

Regener8 has recently finalised a land access agreement with the private landholder on which EL9718 is situated, which allows exploration to commence.

The North Achilles project is located on the western margin of the Rast Trough, with the geological structural architecture locally dominated by the convergence of the Uabba Fault and the Kilparney Fault (Figure 2). This junction of two major regional faults is interpreted as a zone of significant structural complexity that may serve as a conduit for mineralising fluids. Magnetic inversion and structural interpretation suggest that the Achilles Shear Zone, which hosts AGC's known discoveries to the south, projects northward into the tenement under shallow cover. The Phase 1 UFF program was designed to test this area of fault intersection with a focus on detecting a geochemical signature of the basement geology through the shallow cover.

In terrains with thin to modest cover or transported overburden, conventional coarse-fraction (silt / sand / gravel) soil sampling often fails to detect dispersion halos from underlying mineralisation due to dilution and masking by barren cover material. UFF addresses this, and aims to amplify subtle geochemical anomalism by isolating the < 2 µm clay-colloidal fraction of the soils sample, which preferentially carries trace metals that may be derived from underlying mineralisation during regolith development and evolution.

In the preceding quarter, drone magnetic survey of the tenement was completed along with structural interpretation. Challenges associated with geophysical deliverables that contained significant noise from the service provider meant that the Company spent significant efforts to reprocess the data. Finalisation of this work is imminent and the Company expects to update the market in the coming weeks including progress on land access.

In a shallowly covered and structurally complex domain such as the Uabba-Kilparney / Achilles corridor, UFF provides a first-pass geochemical tool to rapidly discern any prospective zones to target for further exploration by geophysical or drilling techniques. This dual approach of surface geochemistry and targeted geophysical surveys (including IP and EM methods) has proven successful elsewhere within the Cobar region.

The current robust pricing backdrop for metals such as Au, Ag and Cu is driving renewed enthusiasm in the exploration sector. In this macro environment, exploration projects like North Achilles which are located immediately proximal to known mineralisation yet have received no modern exploration with modern techniques such as UFF and geophysical targeting are well positioned to leverage the current commodity cycle.

East Ponton Project

Further to the rationalisation of tenement holding at East Ponton, no exploration activities were undertaken during the quarter. The Company is retaining holding over what it considers the most prospective ground for a polymetallic Mulga Rocks-style deposit, should nickel and cobalt commodity prices improve along with anomalous gold in paleochannel targets.
