Operational Highlights

Callisto

The Callisto Food Safety System continues to gain traction across aged-care and hospitality operations nationwide. These deployments are improving compliance automation, reducing manual reporting and driving measurable productivity gains for clients.

The newly launched Callisto Smart Handheld Temperature Device has generated strong demand for its ease of use, ergonomic design, and operational efficiency. The Company has scaled manufacturing to meet this demand, demonstrating the Company’s ability to translate R&D into commercial outcomes.

MeridianCT Platform

On the request from a Callisto user client, the Company has commenced a program to integrate the proven environmental and facility monitoring capabilities of the MeridianCT platform into Callisto, introducing ultrasonic water-tank sensors for accurate water level and consumption tracking.

The Company believes that this initiative will expand opportunities for both products in the building management and environmental compliance space.

In partnership with Federation University and The University of Adelaide, Constellation has initiated a Digital Twin Agriculture Monitoring Project, deploying IoT devices across Canola farms in Ararat, Victoria and vineyards in McLaren Vale, South Australia. These projects integrate real-time data, analytics and AI to enhance sustainability and crop-management outcomes.

The project is expected to complete by the end of the current financial year.

Financial Snapshot

The Company recorded customer receipts of $504k during the quarter, reflecting continued engagement from key enterprise clients and sustained recurring revenue from its food-safety and monitoring portfolios.
