

BOQ COMPLETES WHOLE-OF-LOAN SALE

1 May 2026, Brisbane: Bank of Queensland Limited (ASX: BOQ) is pleased to confirm that it has today completed its previously announced¹ whole-of-loan equipment finance portfolio sale to Challenger Limited (ASX: CGF), with $3.6² billion of assets sold.

The completion of this transaction represents a key milestone in BOQ's transformation to a simpler, specialist bank, with improved returns. As previously announced, the proceeds of the sale are expected to reduce funding and, subject to regulatory and Board approval, provide a return to shareholders, through an on-market buyback of shares and a fully franked special dividend³.

Financial implications⁴

As at 28 February 2026, the assets and associated liabilities of the whole-of-loan sale were considered a 'held for sale disposal group', which resulted in a statutory loss of $31 million recorded in the first half of the year.

Following completion of the sale, an estimated loss of $52 million⁵ will be recorded as an expense item in the 2026 financial statements, and as a non-cash item within Statutory net profit after tax. This comprises a sale premium of $3 million and reduction in the provision for expected credit losses of $16 million, offset by an allocation of goodwill of $20 million, the impact of interest rate swaps of $41 million which remain economic, transaction costs relating to the sale of $6 million, and $4 million of other items.
