RAS Technology Holdings Limited (ASX: RTH) ("RAS" or the "Company"), a leading provider of fully integrated premium data, enhanced content, wagering technology solutions and digital, publications and media services to the global racing and wagering industries, is pleased to announce the execution of new customer agreements which are expected to contribute at least an additional $2.0 million in annualised revenue per annum, as well as key contract extensions.

New deals, contract expansions and extensions

RAS has signed an agreement and completed the technical integration with UK-based online sports betting software company Altenar, with three customer brands already live through the partnership and several more in the pipeline. RAS will deliver pre-race data, race day data, and an Oddsline service to Altenar's UK and international sportsbook customers. This gives Altenar's operator base access to a more complete racing product, while supporting Altenar 's broader ambition to offer flexible, best-in-class supplier options across its platform.

The services being provided through the Altenar platform are in addition to the Company's existing platform deals with Playbook Engineering, Pragmatic Play and Openbet. The Company's diverse range of platform provider partnerships and the scale afforded by their end customers is an important driver of future growth.

RAS has extended its international content agreement with TABtouch for a further five years, while also expanding the scope to include enhanced data and content for Australian thoroughbred, harness, and greyhound racing. Under the agreement, RAS will provide TABtouch with race previews, runner comments and content enhancements across all jurisdictions.

The Company has increased the value of its full trading solution contract with Fairplay in the UK and supported Australian bookmaker Laserbet in launching its first external brand on RAS's Wagering 360 platform, accessing best in class data and content as well as RAS' managed trading services. Meanwhile, RAS Asia has signed multiple new commercial agreements reflecting strong momentum.

RAS has also signed several other deals with new clients for services relating to Wagering Technology and Enhanced Information Services.

LeoVegas update

RAS's commercial agreement with LeoVegas went live on 1 May 2026, initially launching with BetMGM Sweden, with their major UK brands to roll out by Q1 FY27. The Company anticipates this rollout, once complete, will deliver a material increase in annualised revenue. Under the agreement, RAS will provide pre-race data, its signature enhanced content, official race day data from all major global rightsholders, and a fully Managed Trading Service (MTS) — all delivered through a unified integration designed to reduce costs, simplify operations, and future-proof the racing vertical.

RAS Technology Managing Director and CEO, Stephen Crispe, said:

"These agreements reflect the depth and quality of what RAS delivers to racing and wagering operators around the world. Extending our relationship with TABtouch, welcoming Altenar as a new platform partner, and going live with LeoVegas are all important milestones. We are also seeing strong momentum in our Asian business, which is performing ahead of expectations since the team joined last year. With further deals expected to close before the end of FY26, the pipeline continues to build, and we approach the beginning of FY27 with confidence."
