RG8's net portfolio return was -0.9% in June, broadly in-line with the MSCI Asia Pacific Index.[2]

Korea was again a large positive contributor, led by core artificial intelligence (AI) infrastructure holdings, particularly memory-related names. Tight supply, stronger pricing and resilient demand continued to support earnings, a view reinforced by Micron's record results and strong guidance.

While we remain constructive on the ongoing AI investment cycle, we took further profits in selected AI-related positions after exceptionally strong share price performance, elevated sentiment and crowded positioning. Memory remains cyclical and risk rises when expectations become stretched. We are therefore managing exposure carefully, while retaining positions where demand is strong, supply is tight and pricing power remains intact.

Japan also contributed positively. Japanese banks benefited from the Bank of Japan's rate increase to around 1.0% and the likely continuation of interest rate normalisation. The investment case remains supported by higher rates driving net interest margin (NIM) expansion, resilient loan growth, governance reform and higher capital returns, alongside Japan's investment led policy agenda.

Other AI supply chain names also performed well as the rally broadened. Renesas outperformed as investors increasingly recognised its data centre power exposure, although we remain cautious given it is not a pure play AI beneficiary and still has meaningful exposure to cyclical automotive and industrial end markets.

Detractors included Alibaba, defence-related longs and several resource-related positions.

Buy-back: In June, approximately 1.9m RG8 shares were bought at an average price of $2.81.

FY26 result: RG8 expects to release its FY26 result on Monday, 17 August.
