Whitefield's portfolio generated a 4.6% return for the first quarter of its 2027 financial year and a return of 10.7% per annum over the last 3 years.

The most recent quarter was a period of high market uncertainty contributed to by conflict in the middle east, rising oil prices and cautious consumer spending.

The investment portfolio has outperformed its benchmark index over the rolling 1 year and 3 year periods. Returns are similar to benchmark over the rolling 10 years. This consistency of outcome reflects the company's consistent stock selection and portfolio construction processes over this time.

Stronger returns for the quarter came from holdings in ProMedicus, James Hardie Industries, Life 360, Aristocrat Leisure, Block Inc, Computershare, Megaport, ZIP Co and SRG Global.

Understanding portfolio and shareholder returns

The Portfolio Return provides the clearest measure of the Company's underlying investment portfolio performance and its comparison to the return of a benchmark index portfolio.

Net Asset Backing (NAB) and Dividend Returns provides a good measure of the total value that has been generated for investors through dividends, franking credits and changes in the net asset backing per share.

The Share Price and Dividend Return is a notional measure for an investor who buys a WHF share at the market price at the start of the measurement period and sells it at the market price at the end of the measurement period. It will be heavily influenced by the price at which buyers and sellers have transacted in the Company's shares on ASX on those two dates.

¹ Asset Backing Releases after this date are made available on the Company's website or ASX Announcements.

The share price is currently trading at a discount to underlying asset backing

Buyers and sellers transacted in Whitefield Industrials shares across the quarter at prices between $4.80 and $5.00 pre-dividend and $4.50 to $4.70 ex-dividend.

These prices are at a discount to the underlying net asset backing which amounted to $6.13 per share at quarter-end.

The potential enhancement to investment returns for an investor buying at prices below asset backing can be seen in the following table:

Example showing the rate of return to an investor from every 10% generated and distributed on NAB	Value of each 10% distributed	Rate of Return
Net Asset Backing (NAB)	$6.11	$0.61
Share Price	$4.72	$0.61
		12.9%

This is an illustrative example only, not a prediction of future returns.

Market Outlook

As we move into the second half of the 2026 calendar year the Australian and global economic outlook is characterised by continuing uncertainty.

The conflict in the middle east continues to dominate the outlook. An ongoing conflict places upwards pressure on fuel prices and inflation, while a resolution would ease energy costs and inflation expectations, with bond yields lowering and markets responding positively.

On the domestic front, the primary drivers of economic growth remain firm. Housing and infrastructure construction demand is strong. Healthcare, education, business and industrial services are robust. Against this, consumer demand has softened as a consequence of higher energy costs and tightening monetary policy. Australia's recent changes to negative gearing and capital gains taxation rules are also significant. These tax changes have softened house prices, improving housing affordability - an outcome which assists the Reserve Bank in maintaining monetary policy stability.

While the current outlook remains uncertain, we recognise that the combination of fundamental economic strength and the eventual resolution of the current conflict is ultimately positive for many of the companies in which we invest.

We look forward to reporting to investors as the year progresses.
