Appointment of non-executive Director, Karim Temsamani

Karim Temsamani is currently President, Next Generation Security Palo Alto Networks, a position he has held since September 2024. Karim leads GTM (Go-to-Market) programs and global sales for the company's cloud security, security operations and network security platforms as well as Unit 42, the Threat Intelligence and Incident Response group.

Previously, Karim served as CEO of Cardlytics, a digital advertising platform used in the banking industry.

Prior to Cardlytics, Karim served in several leadership roles at Stripe including head of global partnerships, and head of financial products.

Preceding Stripe, he spent 12 years at Google where he oversaw Google's sales and operations across the AsiaPacific region. Karim held several senior positions at Google including Global Head of Mobile, and Managing Director Google Australia and New Zealand.

Karim started his career in the media and publishing industries and graduated in International Affairs at the European Business School Paris.
