Mr Kneeshaw is a highly experienced exploration geologist with more than 30 years' experience across gold, base metals and nickel exploration in Australia and internationally. He has held senior technical roles with several ASX-listed companies and has been directly involved in multiple discovery-stage programs, project evaluations and development pathways.

Importantly, Mr Kneeshaw previously served as a senior technical consultant to De Grey Mining Limited during the formative stages of exploration at the Hemi discovery. His familiarity with the geological architecture, structural controls and mineralisation styles of the Mallina Basin provides valuable insight for Peregrine as it advances exploration across the Mallina Gold Project, situated in close proximity to the world-class Hemi gold system.

Mr Kneeshaw's role will, amongst other things, include technical oversight of exploration programmes, geological interpretation, drill planning, data review and ongoing strategic input to the Company's activities within the Mallina Gold Project.

The Board welcomes Mr Kneeshaw to the technical team and looks forward to his contribution as Peregrine advances exploration activities across the Mallina Gold Project with further updates to be provided as they become available.

Technical Director of Peregrine, Mr. George Merhi, commented:

"Mr Kneeshaw's deep understanding of the Mallina Basin and direct experience with De Grey's exploration success positions the Company favourably to unlock the value of the Mallina Gold Project. We look forward to working with Mr Kneeshaw as we advance our exploration strategy in this highly prospective region."
