

Stakk Secures New IBM (NYSE: IBM) Contract as Global Client Momentum Accelerates

- New IBM contract expands Stakk's international business, building on an established relationship with one of the world's most recognisable enterprise brands.
- Australia and New Zealand deployment will utilise Stakk's AI-powered document processing and validation capabilities.
- Agreement commences in October 2026, with immediate revenue contribution and an initial term through to 30 September 2027.
- Another conversion from Stakk's expanding growth pipeline, reinforcing momentum and expansion beyond the United States.
- Further validates the strategic value of the ParaScript acquisition, strengthening Stakk's enterprise reach and accelerating international growth.

Sydney, Tuesday, 6 October 2026: Stakk Limited (ASX: SKK) is pleased to announce a new agreement with IBM Corporation (NYSE: IBM), securing new business with one of the world's most recognisable enterprise brands and further expanding the Group's international reach.

The agreement builds on ParaScript's established relationship with IBM in the United States and covers new business deploying Stakk's AI-powered document processing and validation capabilities across Australia and New Zealand. These capabilities automate the extraction, interpretation and validation of document information, supporting accurate decisioning and reducing manual processing.

The new IBM contract represents another blue-chip enterprise win for Stakk, following the recently announced Candescent and FBI engagements.

This succession of wins demonstrates the Group's ability to convert commercial opportunities into contracted relationships with leading institutions and enterprise brands, extending the reach of its AI-native Digital Trust infrastructure.

Stakk has consistently highlighted the depth and breadth of its growth pipeline. The IBM agreement is a further conversion from that pipeline, providing tangible evidence of the opportunities progressing into revenue-generating client engagements. The Group expects further conversions to follow as it advances opportunities across its target industries and markets, supporting continued growth and shareholder value.

The Australia and New Zealand deployment also advances Stakk's international expansion beyond its established U.S. business. This demonstrates the applicability of the Group's capabilities across geographies and strengthens its position to pursue further international opportunities.

The agreement commences in October 2026, with revenue contribution commencing immediately, and has an initial term through to 30 September 2027 and may auto-renew for subsequent 12-months terms thereafter, unless terminated by either party prior to a renewal date. Revenue generated is subject to processing volumes and is not quantifiable at this time but due to the size of IBM is expected to contribute meaningfully to Stakk's FY2027 revenue target.

Stakk IQ CEO, Emiliano Giacchetti, said: "Securing this new business with IBM is a proud moment for Stakk and further evidence that our pipeline is translating into enterprise wins. We are expanding in the U.S. and internationally, building on our established capabilities and relationships to enter new geographies without a significant expansion of our cost base. Our momentum continues to build, and we expect further wins to follow."
