Domino's lodges appeal in Gall Class Action

Domino's Pizza Enterprises Limited (ASX:DMP) (Domino's) advises that it has lodged a notice of appeal to the Full Court of the Federal Court of Australia against the judgment of Justice Murphy delivered on 22 July 2026, and against the declarations and orders made on 3 August 2026, in the class action proceeding (Gall class action).

The appeal is brought as of right insofar as the judgment and orders bind the lead applicant, Mr Riley Gall. To the extent that the answers to the common questions in the judgment and the orders bind all other group members and leave to appeal is required, Domino's will shortly apply for leave to appeal and request that the leave application be heard by the Full Court concurrently with the appeal.

The cost orders made on 3 August 2026 in the Gall class action have been stayed until the determination of Domino's appeal. The financial impact of the Gall class action on Domino's remains uncertain and unquantifiable until the determination of Domino's appeal and any subsequent process for determining group members' individual claims for the reasons previously disclosed. The outcome and timing of the appeal are uncertain. A hearing date has not yet been set.

This release has been authorised for release by the Board of Directors.
